In this manner Japan expects to meet her enemies. If all goes well, she will be secure against an invasion of her external enemies. But what will she do against her enemies within Eastern Asia, those enemies enemies within Eastern Asia, those enemies who will raise their weapons and fight to the last drop of blood as soon as Japan faces external enemies? First of all there is China with her 400 millions of plucky souls, most of whom bear deep grudge against the Japanese nation. Japan has been coquetting the warlord of Manchuria, but General Chang's political prestige is seriously damaged with the downfall of General Chi and Dr. Sun in the southJapan has lost her influence in China already while the Chili Party, backed by the Anglo-sexon powers, gains power which, we hope, will be employed for the unification of the shattered ration. deatroyed by the defensive squadron waiting at a certain naval base facing the Pacific, awaiting for an opportunity to annihilate the enemy. A aerial attack is reported to be expected along the Kyushu and Shigoku coasts, and this, also, is being taken into consideration. The direct attack of an imaginary enemy, is impossible on the Main Island from Hawaii by warships, but an aerial raid 'from enemy, airplane carriers is quite possible when these boats draw near Japan's coast on the Pacific. Stratery against naval attacks from Hawaii

Strategy against naval attacks from Hawaii as a base is disregarded in the manoeuvre for the authorities believe the more logical plan would favour coming in through the Kyushu and Shigoku waters and along the southwestern coast of Japan facing which, we hope, will be employed for the unification of the shattered nation. As long as Japan could continue her coquetry with the rival parties, thus hampering the unification of China, for which she will have to pay dearly, she could dispense with her anxiety for a danger from China. But once united, China will be a great menace to the Japanese nation and the future of the Island Empire will be precarious.
